WELDON READY TO BEGIN WORK AS NEW JUDGE

Governor Bricker Appoints Republican Choice At Office Ceremony

BOND OF $5,000 PREPARED

Father And Party Chairman Present As Commission Is Presented

Indorsed by the Pickaway county Republican committee and appointed by Governor John Bricker, Lemuel B. Weldon, 137 W. Union street, was preparing Friday to take over the duties of the late Judge Charles C. Young.

Mr. Weldon, a member of the law firm, Weldon and Weldon was appointed late Thursday afternoon by the governor at a conference in his office. Present in addition to the new judge were his father, Chris A. Weldon, S. Court street, and Tom A. Renick, chairman of the Republican executive committee.

Whether Mr. Weldon would take over the office late Friday or be forced to wait until Saturday depended on the success in contacting the three county commissioners for approval of his $5,000 bond. The bond was prepared Thursday evening by Prosecuting Attorney George E. Gerhardt. Mr. Weldon planned to visit the home of Commissioners Ralph E. May in Circleville township, C. Edward Wright in Harrison township, and John Keller in Scioto township. He intended to go to work just as soon as the bond is approved.

The new judge will serve until the next general election, which will be in November, 1940. A judge will be elected to complete the remainder of Judge Young's term which runs from November, 1940, to February, 1941, with a full term judge to be chosen at the same election, that term starting in February, 1941.

It is understood that no changes are contemplated in the office force now employed in Probate Court.

A 25-year-old man was arrested by the Columbus police department, Thursday night, as a suspect in the robbery of Mr. and Mrs. George Adkins at their filling station, Routes 104 and 316, Wednesday evening.

The suspect was brought to the Pickaway county jail.

Three men held up Mr. and Mrs. Adkins, taking it from his trouser pocket.

The auto used in the robbery was found abandoned in Muhlenberg township after it had been wrecked in an attempt to escape. The men employed a motorist to take them to Columbus.

Sheriff's deputies did not reveal the name of the suspect.

KIDNAPED CHILD ADOLF PUTS ON RETURNS HOME MILITARY SHOW

Two Persons Under Arrest In Philadelphia After Strange Abduction

PHILADELPHIA, June 2—In the midst of an intensive police search, blue-eyed, five-months-old Gerald McCrohan, who was kidnapped late yesterday from his baby carriage in West Philadelphia, was returned to his overjoyed parents at noon today.

The return of the baby, whose abduction by "a blonde woman" touched off a night-long hunt, was announced by police officials. Two persons, neither of whom was immediately identified, were taken into custody and were being held incommunicado, detectives disclosed.

Shortly before the baby's recovery the Catholic priest who baptized the child had issued a plea for the abductor to give Gerald back to his heart-broken parents. The Rev. John J. O'Neill, assistant rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, coupled his appeal with a promise to provide "all the protection I can afford."

"The kidnaper or kidnappers are more than welcome to contact me at any time in an endeavor to get back this child," said the priest. "It is a pitiful thing. I never saw anybody look so forlorn as these poor parents."

BERGER FILLED TO OVERFLOWING WITH PATIENTS

Patients in Berger hospital, Friday, totaled 25, the largest number listed in the history of the institution.

Finding sufficient space for the patients was a problem for hospital attendants. One patient has been placed in the sun parlor.

Thursday night a patient underwent a major emergency operation and the emergency room was prepared for her room. It was necessary to remove the patient from the room, Friday, when another patient underwent a minor operation.

The crowded conditions at the hospital, attendants explained, clearly indicates the need for an addition. Two years ago Circleville voters defeated a bond issue for an addition to the institution.

FEW REVOLTS TAKE PLACE

Bricker Puts Signature On 149 Acts; Others Reach Desk Later

COLUMBUS, June 2—Its record by common acknowledgment at least equal to that of most assemblies of the last decade and in several respects considerably superior, the ninety-third Ohio General Assembly's regular session, to all practical intents and purposes, passed into history today.

Harmony between the legislature and the executive branch of the state government was the keynote of the five month session concluded shortly before midnight.

Near the end the legislature at times displayed a tendency to take issue with the governor, but these "revolts" were inconsequential when measured in terms of the open rebellions of its immediate predecessors.

Skeleton sessions were to be held today and tomorrow and a final one on sine die adjournment day, June 14, but these will be perfunctory and attended only by a handful of members. Their sole purpose is to conform with the requirement that bills passed be signed by the presiding officers in the presence of the members.

Gavel Bangs at 11:10

So far as the passage of bills is concerned, the session ended last night when red-haired "Bill" McCulloch, speaker of the house, banged his gavel at 11:10 p. m. Forty minutes previously Lieut. Gov. Paul Herbert had adjourned the senate.

As usual, the session ended on a note of horseplay. Released from the tension of five months (Continued on Page Six)

Ruth E. Clark Honored In School 'Who's Who'

Dependability is only one of the many qualities that place Ruth Evelyn Clark in the 1939 "Who's Who Among High School Seniors".

For every assignment, large or small, Ruth may be counted on to turn in fine work. As business manager of the 1939 "Circle", she has steered that C. H. S. publication through a successful year. Play Director Samuel R. Johnson selected her to be business manager of both junior and senior class plays.

Her classmates have honored her for three successive years with election as class secretary.

Again her leadership and popularity are shown in her Girl Reserve record. She held the Girl Reserve offices of vice president and treasurer in her sophomore and senior years, respectively.

Active in other extra-curricular work, she has been a member of the Girls' Glee Club for four years; the Debate Club for two, and Epsilon Mu Sigma for three.

She played for her class during three volleyball and two basketball tournaments.

Ruth was, during her sophomore and junior years, on the Red and Black staff. She took an active part in preparations for the 1938 Junior-Senior banquet.

Her capability won for her the chairmanship of last Fall's magazine sale which benefited the athletic fund.

A student in the classical course, Ruth shows fine scholarship in maintaining four years' membership on Circleville's district-state scholarship team and in her ranking as class salutatorian with a 3.8 average for four years' courses.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 2—"Any candidate the Republicans name in 1940 will win," in the opinion of Alfred M. Landon, the 1936 G. O. P. presidential nominee.

This was the optimistic prophecy he had left today with up-state Republican leaders with whom he conferred while enroute to Syracuse for a week-end of fishing with Harold B. Johnson, Watertown publisher.

Landon reported a definite nationwide Republican trend was discernable to him but reiterated his previous announcement that he is not in the race for 1940.

ALASKAN REGION ENDANGERED BY CRATER'S ASHES

PERRYVILLE, Alaska, June 2—Ashes almost two inches thick blanketed a 20-mile area of the Alaska peninsula today following the latest in a series of volcanic eruptions from the two craters of Mount Veniamin.

The U. S. Coast guard cutter Morris of the Bering Sea patrol stood by in the harbor of Perryville ready to evacuate residents of the tiny fishing settlement. It was feared that in the event of another eruption shifting winds may carry scorching cinders into the community. Caribou and other wild game, their forage withered and blackened, already have fled the scene.

Flames began belching from the two craters May 23 and at the height of the display rose to an estimated 1,500 feet while ashes, according to coast guard reports, shot at least 20,000 feet into the air.

DRIVER FREEZES TO DEATH INSIDE ICE CREAM TRUCK

NEW YORK, June 2—Two curious men early today swung open the heavy, insulated door of a large ice cream truck parked overlong in the street and found the hunched up body of the driver, Louis Bolter, 35, who had slowly frozen to death.

It was theorized the driver had entered the compartment to obtain ice cream for deliveries and that when the door accidentally slammed shut on him he became too panic stricken to utilize a little metal rod kept inside for just such emergencies to open the lock from within.

ROAD WORKER HURT

Russell Fleming, 33, of 812 Oak Knoll street, Warren, O., was admitted to Berger hospital, Friday, suffering from back injuries received on the Route 22 improvement project, west of Circleville. Fleming was hurt when winding a winch.

END OF CRAFT FORCED BELOW BAY'S WATERS

Rising Tide Forces Admiralty To Abandon Efforts To Keep Tip Above Liverpool Bay's Surface; Many Deaths Expected

BULLETIN

BIRKENHEAD, England, June 2—A watery death today threatened 90 men trapped aboard the British submarine Thetis when a rising tide caused the craft to tip and sent its stern beneath the waves of Liverpool Bay after four men out of the original complement struggled to the surface by use of the Davis 'lung'.

The four survivors said that at the time they left the submarine older members of the crew on the craft were already in a distressed state.

Desperate attempts made to keep the craft's one end out of water were abandoned as the tide rose.

BIRKENHEAD, Eng., June 2—With only four men out of the original complement of 90 brought to the surface, rescue work by means of the Davis lung was abruptly suspended aboard the sunken British submarine Thetis today to permit replenishment of the submarine's diminishing supply of air.

Surface pumps were brought into play to eliminate foul air in the submarine, whose bow was mired in the mud of Liverpool Bay 100 feet below the surface. The air at present remaining in the Thetis "does not permit large-scale use of the Davis lung," an official explanation said.

Early this afternoon, four members of the Thetis crew emerged slowly to the surface by means of the lung after 24 hours of imprisonment.

Others Wait Turns
The balance waited their turn to be shot through torpedo tubes to grope their way to safety along a knot-studded life line, equipped with helmets, oxygen containers and life buoys.

There was no official explanation of the long delay in effecting rescue of the 86 still trapped below the surface. The British admiralty, insisting that all were alive and well, gave a hint of some unexplained difficulty below by announcing that salvage crews probably would soon begin pumping foul air out of the sunken submersible and filling it with fresh air.

When the Thetis went down yesterday, it was said that 79 persons, including officers, crew and testing experts assigned by the admiralty and Cammell Laird, Ltd., the builders, were aboard.

A revised estimate today, however, stated that the complement totalled 90 men.

Marine authorities pointed out, however, that it was a logical step to fill the submarine with fresh air as soon as possible to ease the vigil of the men still left below. The escape tube utilized in the Davis lung method allows only two men to be released at a time, compelling the last survivors to wait a considerable period before battling their way to safety and sunshine above.

May Cut Hole
Should serious trouble develop preventing escape through the tubes, the admiralty said, rescuers will be assigned to cut a hole with oxy-acetylene torches in the stern of the sunken sub, which although projecting 18 feet above the waters of the bay, eluded the sharp eyes of searchers throughout yesterday afternoon and last night.

The Thetis dived at 1:30 p. m., yesterday for a three-hour test cruise beneath the sea. When she (Continued on Page Six)

REV. T. C. HARPER'S BODY TO BE TAKEN TO CHURCH

The body of the Rev. T. C. Harper, 62, will lie in state from 12 o'clock noon until 2 p. m. Saturday in the auditorium of the United Brethren church, E. Main street. Dr. Walter Clippinger, president of Otterbein college, Westerville, will be in charge of funeral services scheduled Saturday afternoon.

Friends may call at the parsonage until 11 a. m. Saturday. Pallbearers at the funeral will be E. S. Neuding, the Rev. R. T. Kelsey, George Grand-Girard, the Rev. C. F. Bowman, the Rev. E. E. Burtner and the Rev. D. S. Mills.

British Use New 'Lung' For Escapes

LONDON, June 2 — Rescuing of the 90 men aboard the submarine Thetis off North Wales was being carried out today through the Davis escape apparatus. British rescue crews have no diving bells such as the one which brought 33 men safely to the top from the United States submarine Squalus last week; moreover, the angle at which the Thetis lies would make a bell's use difficult.

Britain rejected the idea of the diving bell — although the United States made its design available to all foreign navies — on the ground that rescue operations should initiate from within a submarine rather than from without.

The Davis apparatus consists of a helmet, oxygen container, and life buoy which are strapped to the chest. Men to be released enter a chamber similar in principle to a torpedo tube. When the inner door is closed the outer opens, and the man shoots out.

On his way up he grips a rope which has knots every ten feet. At each knot he stops and breathes for a few seconds to equalize the pressure and minimize the effects of the "bends." The apparatus acts as a life-preserver on the surface, and keeps his head above water if he should emerge unconscious.

Two men can be released every five minutes.

GRAIN AND TOOLS LOST IN FLAMES ON SCHIFF FARM

A large barn on the farm of Mrs. L. C. Schiff, of Ashville, located near Darbyville, was destroyed by fire Thursday night.

The blaze was discovered about midnight. It had gained such headway the structure could not be saved. Hay, farming tools and 1,000 bushels of corn were destroyed. The loss is covered by insurance.

The farm is known as the William Cordray farm. Cause of the fire is unknown.

ARMY OFFICIALS BEGIN TO STUDY MOSELEY STAND

Transcript Of Retired Man's
Testimony Before Dies
Committee Obtained

HITLER'S PRAISE CITED

General Still Responsible
Under Articles Of War,
Washington Hears

WASHINGTON, June 2—The War Department today studied testimony taken by the House Dies committee from Major Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, U. S. A. (retired) to determine if his anti-Semitic activities warranted official action.

A complete transcript of the two-day testimony was given to Lt. Col. Lawrence H. Hedrick, chief of the department justice section. So far, the department has taken the position that to proceed against the general would be to "martyr" him, according to one high official.

The straight-talking Moseley, who retired last September with a scorching denunciation of the New Deal, is still subject to the articles of war although on the retired list at $6,000 a year. At the request of the department, the committee last week supplied Colonel Hedrick all the evidence it had gathered on the general, but his testimony contained many assertions that were not in the committee's documentary evidence.

Highlights Disclosed

Highlights of Moseley's testimony included:

1. Praise for Chancellor Hitler's internal and international policies, with particular emphasis on his handling of the "racial problems."

2. Defense of the German-American Bund as a "patriotic" organization and laudatory remarks concerning its activities.

3. Criticism of what he termed an order by the present administration forbidding the army to investigate subversive activities in this country.

4. The declaration that if he were in the White House the first thing he would do would be to discharge all Communists and Communist sympathizers from the government, and release the army from the restrictive order so that it could "protect life and property from enemies within."

5. Recommendation that veterans and service men form vigilante groups in various communities to resist local disorders when they arise.

Moseley repeatedly expressed his conviction that the country is now faced with a "great emergency" because of the inroads of Communism. He insisted that Communists and Jews are virtually one and the same species, and frankly stated that he has declared war on both of them.

Not Against Individuals

He said he held no malice toward "individual" Jews, but emphasized that he believed that "unfortunately obstacles are put in their way by organized international Jewry."

In describing his own activities, he frequently used the words "patriotic" and "Christian." He applied the same appellations to numerous persons prominent in anti-Semitic, Nazi and Fascist groups in this country. He admitted that several months ago he predicted that there would be a "housecleaning" in the federal government in 1940, and that anti-Semitic leaders would play prominent parts in it.

His testimony climaxed a series of unscheduled hearings by the committee which had not planned to open its inquiry publicly until August.

The general was brought into the inquiry when committee investigators seized files from a Kentucky army reserve captain, James Erwin Campbell, which contained letters from Moseley.

Emperor Nero believed that he was brilliant in everything. His dying words were, "What an artist is lost in me!"

By the end of June, Lawrence Tibbett will have travelled, in airplanes, twice the distance around the world in flying to Hollywood for broadcasts of his Sunday program, "The Circle." Tibbett already has travelled 20,000 miles, commuting between New York and Hollywood. For the next five weeks, he has booked westward passage on airlines every Friday and has reserved a seat on an eastbound plane every Monday. By the end of June, this will total more than 50,000 miles.

Larry Crosby, brother of Bing, told Pat Friday, a new Crosby singing discovery, that she was blessed with an excellent omen in having her radio debut delayed three weeks by a cold. Three times, the 17-year-old University of California, Los Angeles, co-ed, was announced as a Music Hall guest for the following week. A cold prevented her appearance until last week. Larry Crosby reminded her that a cold had delayed Bing's radio debut three times.

One of the shyest of Hollywood stars in public or in front of the microphone is Ronald Colman who'll appear in "The Prisoner of Zenda" on the Radio Theatre, Monday, June 5. Colman invariably plays "across" the microphone to avoid facing the studio audience which makes him nervous. Cecil B. DeMille's production of "The Prisoner of Zenda" will be heard over the Columbia network at 8 p. m.

Robert Emmet Doland, Jr., now one month old, is one of the most photographed babies his age in the world. Robert Emmet Doland, Sr., who conducts his orchestra on the program, "The Circle," hasn't had time to go East to see his new son. Friends send him pictures almost daily. Doland, whose wife and son will join him in Hollywood during the Summer, has seen so many pictures of the youngster that he's sure he could pick him out of a thousand babies.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Outdoor action fans will find everything they want in the new "Hopalong Cassidy" romance, "The Frontiersmen," which opens tonight on a Double bill with "Blind Alley" at the Cliftona theatre. It packs a swift-paced story in the best Clarence E. Mulford tradition, offers a grand background of some of the West's finest scenery and boasts a real "he-man" cast headed by such favorites as William Boyd, George Hayes and Russell Hayden.

As the title suggests, "The Frontiersmen" deals with the efforts of hard-riding, straight-shooting ranchers to establish law and order in the cattle country of the untamed West. This time their chief adversary is the mayor of the small New Mexico town near which they live, who is secretly leader of a rustler gang and uses his office to cover up his illegal activities.

The struggle waged between "Hopalong Cassidy" and the crooked mayor for control of the local school is the chief interest of the picture. The real object of the struggle is the children, who "Hoppy" wants to turn into hard-working, law-abiding ranchers and break of their frontier habits.

AT THE GRAND

If there really was any doubt, after "Jezebel" and "The Sisters," as to just who is the greatest actress on the screen today, there can certainly be no more argument on the matter after everyone has seen—and they will—Bette Davis in her latest Warner Bros. picture, "Dark Victory," which had an advance showing last night at the Grand theatre. It opens Sunday for a three day regular showing.

The new film is fully worthy of the talents of its lustrous star. It tells a love story of transcendent beauty and deeply moving poignancy and it provides a central character upon whose portrayal Miss Davis can lavish every resource of her consummate art.

Of course, while every happening in the picture revolves about the girl played by Miss Davis, the production is by no means a monologue for her. An exceptionally able supporting cast, numbering in it such luminaries as George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Henry Travers and Ronald Reagan, was provided by Warner Bros., and the superlative performance of the star seems to have inspired them all to attain a degree of ensemble excellence

Jungle Family

JOHNNY WEISSMULLER and Maureen O'Sullivan again play Tarzan and his Mate in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature based on Edgar Rice Burroughs' famous jungle character. But the new and important addition to the cast is "Boy" otherwise known as Johnny Sheffield, who will be Tarzan, Jr. in "Tarzan Finds A Son!"

which has rarely before been achieved either on stage or screen.

AT THE CIRCLE

The title role in "Scarface," which comes to the Circle theatre today, is played by Paul Muni, a Broadway stagestar, who quit the screen two years ago after making two pictures for Fox Film Corporation.

Ann Dvorak, a girl who for three years was on the pay-roll of a major studio without receiving a single chance to display her talents, was given the outstanding feminine role and her performance was a sensation. Today she is sought by every producer in Hollywood for leading parts, although her role in "Scarface" was her first.

Karen Morley, another girl who played in only minor and "but" parts, was given her first real opportunity in this picture, and the critics now acclaim her one of the outstanding actresses on the screen.

Osgood Perkins, the original "Walter Burns" in "The Front Page," has alternated between stage and screen for years, and has appeared in many pictures. But not until "Scarface" was he given an outstanding role, which he enacted with such brilliance that he is now regarded one of the foremost character actors in Hollywood.

George Raft, who resembles the late Rudolph Valentino, has tried for years to obtain parts in pictures which might win him recognition. His portrayal of the dapper gunman in "Scarface" won him instant favor with Hollywood producers, and lavish praise from critics and the public.

ARMY OFFICIALS BEGIN TO STUDY MOSELEY STAND

Transcript Of Retired Man's
Testimony Before Dies
Committee Obtained

HITLER'S PRAISE CITED

General Still Responsible
Under Articles Of War,
Washington Hears

WASHINGTON, June 2—The War Department today studied testimony taken by the House Dies committee from Major Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, U. S. A. (retired) to determine if his anti-Semitic activities warrant official action.

A complete transcript of the two-day testimony was given to Lt. Col. Lawrence H. Hedrick, chief of the department justice section. So far, the department has taken the position that to proceed against the general would be to "martyr" him, according to one high official.

The straight-backed Moseley, who retired last September with a scorching denunciation of the New Deal, is still subject to the articles of war although on the retired list at $6,000 a year. At the request of the department, the committee last week supplied Colonel Hedrick all the evidence it had gathered on the general, but his testimony contained many assertions that were not in the committee's documentary evidence.

Highlights Disclosed

Highlights of Moseley's testimony included:

1. Praise for Chancellor Hitler's internal and international policies, with particular emphasis on his handling of the "racial problems."

2. Defense of the German-American Bund as a "patriotic" organization and laudatory remarks concerning its activities.

3. Criticism of what he termed an order by the present administration forbidding the army to investigate subversive activities in this country.

4. The declaration that if he were in the White House the first thing he would do would be to discharge all Communists and Communist sympathizers from the government, and release the army from the restrictive order so that it could "protect life and property from enemies within."

5. Recommendation that veterans and service men form vigilante groups in various communities to resist local disorders when they arise.

Moseley repeatedly expressed his conviction that the country is now faced with a "great emergency" because of the inroads of Communism. He insisted that Communists and Jews are virtually one and the same species, and frankly stated that he has declared war on both of them.

Not Against Individuals

He said he held no malice toward "individual" Jews, but emphasized that he believed that "unfortunately obstacles are put in their way by organized international Jewry."

In describing his own activities, he frequently used the words "patriotic" and "Christian." He applied the same appellations to numerous persons prominent in anti-Semitic, Nazi and Fascist groups in this country. He admitted that several months ago he predicted that there would be a "housecleaning" in the federal government in 1940, and that anti-Semitic leaders would play prominent parts in it.

His testimony climaxed a series of unscheduled hearings by the committee which had not planned to open its inquiry publicly until August.

The general was brought into the inquiry when committee investigators seized files from a Kentucky army reserve captain, James Erwin Campbell, which contained letters from Moseley.

Emperor Nero believed that he was brilliant in everything. His dying words were, "What an artist is lost in me!"

OFFICIALS ARE OPTIMISTIC

Progress Reported In County With More Adults Taking Active Roles

An "early bird breakfast" for all volunteer workers Tuesday morning, June 6, at the American Hotel Coffee Shop will officially open this year's annual sustaining membership appeal for Scouting in the Pickaway district, according to Herman Hill, campaign chairman. Announcements concerning the opening meeting was made this week to Scouters, Scout fathers and friends of Scouting recruited to assist in the drive.

The customary goal of $600 to assure the maintenance of Boy Scout work here for the ensuing year is sought, Hill said. This amount has been successfully raised in the last two years with the communities of Ashville, New Holland, Williamsport and Kingston cooperating with Circleville in soliciting the public for funds.

Recent growth and extension of the popular youth movement in the district prompt local Scout leaders to view the approaching campaign optimistically, Hill declared. Under the leadership of James I. Smith, Jr. district chairman, and William Radcliff, district Scout commissioner, Scouters have assumed more responsibility in the furtherance of the program locally, he pointed out, and indications are that the work will continue throughout the coming year. Progress has been reported in leadership training, improved organization, and better relationships in addition to increased membership in Scouts and Scouters, he added.

Sustaining members help finance this district's share of the operating expense of the Central Ohio Area Council of eight counties, of which this district is a part. The local Council maintains a service that makes possible a maximum of efficiency with a minimum of expense. Employing professional leaders who counsel and advise and assist volunteer leaders, Scouting is considered one of the most economically administered of all social agencies.

COP ROUNDS UP BEES

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Cowboys use horses to roundup cattle and Patrolman J. V. Tillman, of the Memphis police force, uses his motorcycle to round up bees. It all happened when a swarm of bees gathered on a sign over a Memphis bus station. Officer Tillman rode under them with his motorcycle, honked his horn several times, and the bees peacefully settled in a pasteboard box.

We certainly envy their majesties. Imagine the thrill in contacting for the first time that gift of the gods—hamburger on bun with plenty of chili sauce.

All of us who are fond of good pumpkin pie are reminded of this luxury everytime we see Bill Duval the champion, good-pie pumpkin raiser. Met him Thursday at headquarters and was glad to learn that his pumpkin patch has eight acres in it and that his crop is very promising, hundreds of small ones already "setting on" with the growing season scarcely begun. There will be no failure with him he thinks rain or no rain. Pumpkins raised on sugar tree soil, as his is, make a better growth and sweeter in flavor and is sure of this because he's tried it out and knows, he told us.

Workers about the local canning plant are busy getting everything in shape and readiness for the pea canning start which is not so far away.

The lack of moisture has done severe damage to the crop and the pack will be a small one compared to previous years. Hundreds of acres of sweet corn have been planted for the factory and at this time is among the "doing as well as can be expected" class. New and different equipment will be installed for the pumpkin canning season. The Weather Man in his report this morning says this is the driest May in the history of the bureau, the rainfall for the month being but .33 of an inch, the previous dry record for month of May being .66 of an inch.

The lack of moisture has done severe damage to the crop and the pack will be a small one compared to previous years. Hundreds of acres of sweet corn have been planted for the factory and at this time is among the "doing as well as can be expected" class. New and different equipment will be installed for the pumpkin canning season. The Weather Man in his report this morning says this is the driest May in the history of the bureau, the rainfall for the month being but .33 of an inch, the previous dry record for month of May being .66 of an inch.

TO POLICEMEN

OFFICERS: What has happened to the drive against N. Court street speeders that was started several weeks ago and then stopped, apparently for no reason at all? Motorists believed that a check was to be made in an effort to reduce the speed maintained along the main thoroughfare, and they did slow down in anticipation of the campaign. But, it lasted only a short time. Now Court street, from the Hargus creek bridge to the city limits, is the same speedway that it was prior to the drive to slow down traffic. A policeman, dressed in plain clothes, could stand for 10 minutes at any given spot along the thoroughfare with a pencil and pad and write down enough license tag numbers of cars violating various traffic laws to keep police court busy for the next two weeks. Speeding is the most common violation. Others include passing on the wrong side, driving far to the opposite side of the highway to pass a car traveling in the same direction, downright recklessness, and—if such a charge could be filed—just plain cussedness. Some one of these fine days a motorist will lose control of his car, leave the road and strike someone on the sidewalk or in a yard; THEN something will be done to break up this speedway.

TO SCOUTERS

WORKERS: Most of you received a letter during the last week from the district commissioner of the Boy Scout organization in Pickaway county. It recalled to your attention that the month of June holds many interesting undertakings in which you are expected to participate. Neighborhood commissioners will discuss troop budget plans; the annual financial campaign will be started on June 6 with an "early bird" breakfast, $600 to be sought for the district's participating in the area program; a Court of Honor will be conducted June 7 at Gold Cliff park with a motorcade being formed for the trip to the council ring. Several other activities will be taking place during the Summer that will demand your attention, interest and efforts if they have any chance of becoming successes. I urge all of you who are interested in the boys of Circleville and the county to plan to participate in the various undertakings scheduled for June. Those of you who are only lukewarm to the work of the Boy Scout organization should take part in only a few of the projects and I am certain that you will be sold that scouting in Circleville and Pickaway county can be developed into the very best in Central Ohio. The boys of the community want to be Scouts, and you should do all you can to give them this opportunity.

CIRCUITEER.

TO RURAL FOLK

FRIENDS: Why do residents of rural districts of the county fail to heed the warnings of the sheriff's department about gypsies? On numerous occasions the sheriff has urged rural folk to stay a safe distance away from gypsies and call the department if any gypsies are seen in the community. This week an aged resident of New Holland was robbed of about $250. Officers have been unable to trace the car used in the robbery. Older folk have been the victims of most of the recent gypsy robberies in the county. Order them from your property. Do not let them get near you.

CIRCUITEER.

TO WEATHERMAN

SIR: You gave us an example Thursday of just what you can do when you put your mind to it. Thursday's rain was of great value to all districts in which you opened the valves and permitted moisture to escape. The steady downpour was the best Circleville has had for more than a month. However, persons who have planted flowers and gardens are still very receptive, and they would appreciate more rain.

TO HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS

BOYS, Girls: The baccalaureate address that you heard last Sunday evening should be remembered forever. The address by the Rev. G. L. Troutman was outstanding. It covered many problems that you will be called on to face during the next few years of your lives, and, I am sure, that you will benefit greatly if you follow out the teachings he discussed during the evening. Part of the baccalaureate address was devoted to the Ten Commandments, the pastor stressing each as of utmost importance in your daily lives.

CIRCUITEER.

TO PICNICKERS

FRIENDS: The recent warm weather has opened the picnic season for Pickaway countians. A few warnings should not be out of place. Be careful where you obtain your water supply. Be sure it is from a well that has been approved by health authorities. Learn what poison ivy looks like and stay away from it. Take no chances by swimming in streams that are not familiar to you. Remember that Spring floods change the beds of streams. Where you had a swimming hole last year may be a gravel bar this season. The older folk should remember that too much exercise in a ball game may have serious results. Don't take foolish chances.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

AS CONGRESS begins to run into a Washington Summer a majority of the lawmakers invariably emit an anguished howl to the effect that they simply can't stand such weather; they must adjourn for the season or most of them will actually die.

This usual squawk is going on now. It always is particularly vehement just ahead of a presidential year.

Prospective candidates want to get out among the "Peepul" and fix fences. That's the explanation. Washington Summers aren't so hot. They're sticky but the mercury doesn't get especially high. It makes me laugh to hear a solon like Senator Norris of Nebraska refer to national legislation as impossible at a temperature around 95 degrees Fahrenheit, which is approximately the District of Columbia's maximum. I don't believe it's of record that as high as 100 ever was scored on Pennsylvania avenue. I've seen 110 in the Cornhusker state.

Moreover the Capitol, where our legislating is done, is beautifully air-conditioned. And when the senators and representatives retire at nights 90 percent of them turn in in artificially cooled apartments. Their main risk is that they'll catch cold. They know that they'll half suffocate in their home bedrooms out in the sticks. But they don't mind that, since it gives 'em a chance to do politics where votes are to be had.

JUST TO ILLUSTRATE

Illustratively: John N. Garner is exceptionally vigorous in his demands for an early adjournment on Capitol Hill—by the end of June, if possible; by mid-July, anyway. Well, John N., as all are aware, is considerably talked of for the Democratic nomination in 1940. Naturally, he's fairly perishing to be plugging for himself out in the hinterland. However, as long as congress hangs on, he's tied by the leg to his presiding officer's job in the senate chamber. Oh, yes, he could get leave of absence if he chose, but he couldn't utilize it for his own campaigning purposes. That would be too obvious.

Meanwhile, Postmaster General Farley, also with presidential aspirations and comparatively footloose, is rampant. It goes almost without saying that this is frightfully aggravating to "Texas Jack." Washington weather literally is killing him. If he's to survive he's got to get out into the freer, fresher, purer (if very much hotter) atmosphere where Jim Farley is circulating so formidably.

Plenty of lawmakers are similarly anxious to seek better climatic conditions than Washington's. Not all of them deem themselves presidential prospects, but they hope to be re-elected to their present desks in the senate or house of representatives and they realize the desirability of being back home, shaking hands with folks and kissing babies, well ahead of next year's convention and election dates. Washington isn't quite so generally trying to senators, to be sure. Those whose terms overlap 1940 by from two to four years won't be so oppressed by it until 1942 or 1944 rolls around. The ones whose terms are just expiring are the boys who gasp for fresher ozone right now. And ALL representatives need air.

PLENTY TO BE DONE

Lots of legislating or legislative revision remain to be done. Tax adjustment! Economy! Neutrality! The Labor Act! Recovery! When the current congressional session began it was agreed, with practical unanimity, that all these and various other pressing problems imperatively must be solved before adjournment.

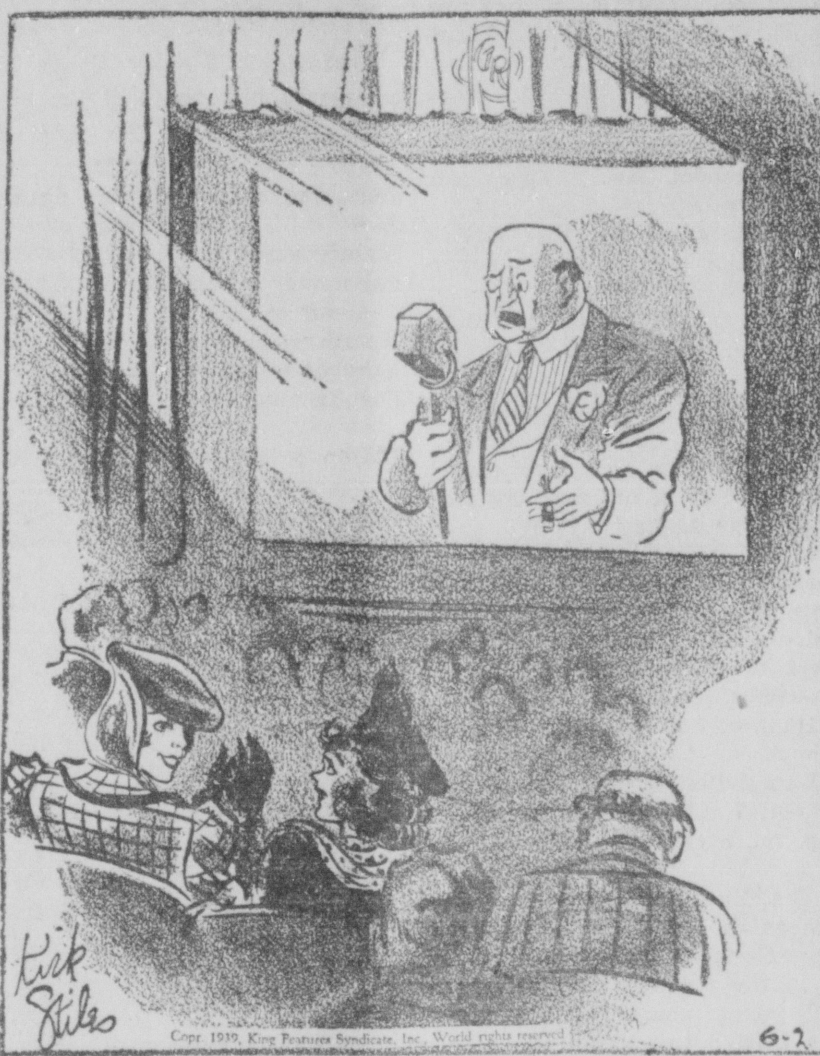

Not one of 'em has been more than merely talked about. "Oh, well," say the lawmakers, "let 'em go for the present. We can't endure the Washington climate in Summer."

10 YEARS AGO
Paul D. Helwagen, present city treasurer, announced his candidacy

Rather oddly the White House (what does it care for Capitol Hill's sufferings?) indorses early adjournment. The administration particularly sought to get neutrality modified. Now it's passed down word, "Pass it up until later on." In effect—"For gosh sake, go home."

Still, it's the old story. Congress always has been an awful headache to the executive mansion—to be relieved at nearly any sacrifice.

LAFF-A-DAY

I applaud everyone in the newsreel. It gives the impression I'm well-read.

DIET AND HEALTH

Role of General Health in Styes

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I AM always glad when I find a discussion in technical medical literature of some humble subject, such as corns or styes. Usually the articles in medical journals are about very rare diseases and recommend very complicated, special treatments. When anybody has some new experience on a thing that everyone has, sooner or later, it is quite a relief.

So I was pleased to find a discussion of styes the other day in the Wisconsin Medical Journal. It was by Dr. A. G. Dunn.

If I may judge by the number of letters I receive, no subject is of more frequent and general interest. There are distinguished two types of styes—external and internal. An external stye is an infection of the Zeis glands in the eyelids at the base of an eyelash. The infection usually goes on to pus formation or, to put it another way, a stye is a small abscess.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Redness, Swelling
The onset of the external stye is characterized by redness and swelling at the base of one or more eyelashes. Before localization takes place—which means before the boil comes to a head—there may be considerable swelling. The inflammation subsides usually only after the pus has broken through or been let out.

These external styes may recur over and over and go all along the eyelids for several months. These are the only really troublesome cases, for which intensive treatment is needed.

The internal stye is an infection of the same sort, but it affects different glands. It affects the glands which pour out the lubricating fluid over the eyelid, the sebaceous glands that lie between the hard thick cartilage plates of the eyelid. (Not to be confused with the tear glands, which also sometimes become infected.) Internal styes run a longer course and are more severe. The pain is greater on account of the rigidity and non-yielding character of the cartilaginous eyelids.

Common in Blonds

Styes may occur with any debilitating disease. They are more common in blonds and sandy-complexioned individuals. Refractive errors, the need for glasses, predisposes to styes, for no good reason of which I am aware, except that possibly the person who needs glasses rubs his eyes with his dirty fingers.

Since general health plays a role, both external and internal treatments are indicated.

Local treatment of a simple stye consists of hot applications until it comes to a head and then accurate and precise incision by a doctor.

In general treatment the use of vaccines is highly recommended. Light-sensitive individuals find tinted glasses a great relief.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. D. N.: "I seem to be a perfectly well person but have noticed that my urine is sometimes cloudy. Is this of any account? Should I see a doctor?"

Answer—It is probably of no consequence. It certainly is of no consequence if it happens only occasionally. People are often frightened by this, which is simply due to cooling or chilling of the urine with the precipitation of phosphates. Phosphates are normal constituents of the urine.

J. B.: "What causes the feet to have a terrible odor and what will cure them of this condition?"

Answer—Usually it is lack of cleanliness. Soap and water, morning and night, with a change of stockings or socks every day and two pairs of shoes worn on alternate days, will usually clear it up. If not, soaking the feet in a bath made of a teaspoonful of formaldehyde in a quart of water before going to bed will greatly aid.

R. O.: "I have been told that the juice of half a lemon in a glass of water taken before breakfast each morning will cure rheumatism. Do you approve of this remedy?"

Answer—I approve of the use of lemon juice before breakfast but I do not believe that it will "cure" rheumatism. If it did, there would be a good deal less rheumatism, wouldn't there?

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by mail. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Looking Back In Pickaway County

Wings of Youth

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

By HELEN WELSHIMER

CHAPTER ONE

WHEN Sarah Anne Melton stopped to buy oranges at the fruit counter in the market house, she had no premonition that before the yellow fruit would be placed in a paper sack and deposited in the basket that swung on her arm, her heart would tumble over, rockets would break, and it would be Christmas eve, Fourth of July and Bank Night all at once.

Sarah Anne wasn't even thinking of Jack Courtney at the moment. Otherwise his name wouldn't have burst across her mind like a shining, shattering meteor. Meteor—that was the word which described him best, she was to think a long time later.

A newsboy flung a paper in front of her while his hoarse young voice took on the dimensions of a town crier:

"Jack Courtney cuts time in two on Pacific hop! Courtney safe in San Francisco! Home-town boy makes good!"

Sarah Anne smiled at the youngster's tribute even while she reached for the paper. Ah, there was Jack! Blue eyes, steady, brave, gay, as she remembered. Hair tousled by a wind. There was always a wind blowing where Jack was. Long legs, broad shoulders, rangy body, chin on the stubborn side. The eyes were smiling into Sarah Anne's. They were the same and yet they were different—they had looked above the clouds across the sea, down the stars. They had seen wonders of which she could only dream. She must ask him how he felt up there in that immensity of sky and water with nowhere a light.

Then the knowledge of what the boy had done swept over her. Jack, whose fraternity pin was fastened under the wide sash of her ruffled pink gingham frock—fastened there because it really didn't mean anything and this way she could wear it without explaining to people—Jack had fulfilled his dream and flown across the widest ocean on a non-stop flight. It was like him to fly the eastern way, back into his own continent, whereas most men went to Japan.

Sarah Anne did not read the story at the moment. Later, at home alone, in her low room with its white ruffled curtains and the chintz-covered chairs and draperies, she would follow the flight. Just now she wanted to shout the news to the world. She laughed softly at the absurdity of such a task. As if the world didn't know it! All the world from Hong Kong to Alberta, Canada, and San Francisco to Berryville, Indiana!

Always afterward she was to remember that it was Judith Drake who spoke to her first that day. Judy came running, waving her own paper in a strong, browned hand, her tawny head flung high.

"Sarah Anne, isn't it glorious!" she exclaimed. "Up there with Lindbergh and Pat and Hughes!"

"It's so glorious it frightens me," Sarah Anne answered solemnly, voice not quite steady.

Judith's hair was orange or amber, depending on the sun. And her eyes matched its tones. There were times when Sarah Anne thought of Vikings and ships, when they were together. This was one of them.

Sarah Anne had prayed at night to be more like Judy, before she learned even prayer must have a possible basis. Once, when Judith received the coveted lead in a class play, Sarah Anne had expressed dissatisfaction with herself to Jack.

She adored her. But there had been other parts and, though Sarah Anne's voice was music and laughter and pathos when she read her lines, the class preferred sturdiness.

This morning, standing in the market place with the record of Jack's triumph in her slim hands, Sarah Anne recalled his words:

"Don't you dare go changing yourself, Sarah Anne Melton. I like girls with dark brown eyes and blue-black curls and I don't want there to be too much to a girl. Just enough to stock her away in the cockpit comfortably. Coming along, Sally Anne, when I take off to Mars?"

Well, he had taken off and she hadn't been there. Hadn't even known he was starting until she read it in the newspaper. She hadn't seen him for two years. She would think about that later, back home in the parsonage in her small bright room.

Mrs. Benjamin Allen came bustling up. Mrs. Allen was round and comfortable and the president of the Ladies' Aid society in the church where Sarah Anne's father had been minister for most of the 22 years of the girl's life.

Now the woman patted her cheerful face. "I always said that boy would do something. Knew it even when he was selling fruit at this counter right here to see himself through school."

Right here at this stand—how many dozens of apples and oranges and bananas he had weighed out for the parsonage! How many times she had happened by at closing time so he could stroll with her as far as the parsonage, going in to the white cottage where he lived with his mother, who taught in the grades.

"Do you think Jack'll come home for a spell?" Mrs. Allen persisted. "You ought to know, Sarah Anne. You and he used to like each other right well. Heard from him?"

She had heard twice in two years. There had been a post-card from Kansas City, and a long letter from his aviation school, written one night when it had rained and he had been lonely. Either it hadn't rained any more or he had not been lonely again. His mother heard, and now that Sarah Anne was teaching the third grade in the building where Mrs. Courtney had the sixth, sometimes a little news came to the minister's daughter.

It was like Sarah Anne that she didn't pretend. She might have said that Jack had been busy, that he had been indefinite, but she didn't. Her dark eyes held the straightforwardness that the boy who had flown away had loved.

"I haven't heard for more than a year, Mrs. Allen."

"No? Then all I have to say is that it's your own fault. With the running start you had, if you want that boy all you have to do is grab him. Of course, if you don't..."

Sarah Anne's candor went into hiding. After all, she couldn't tell anyone that she never saw a mail plane flying above the chimneys of the town without a memory of certain singing, winging days when she had gone up in an old crate with a boy who talked always of flying higher, faster, farther.

Judith interrupted, "If that romance ever makes page one, Mrs. Allen, Jack will be the lucky one."

Today's Horoscope

Guard against deception in the next year is the one warning to those who start a new year of life on this date. Otherwise the year will be busy and successful. A child born today will be active, impulsive and good-natured. He or she will be clever, outspoken and fond of display. Unscrupulous persons may try to impose on them because of their good-nature.

One-Minute Test Answers

WORKERS: Most of you received a letter during the last week from the district commissioner of the Boy Scout organization in Pickaway county. It recalled to your attention that the month of June holds many interesting undertakings in which you are expected to participate. Neighborhood commissioners will discuss troop budget plans; the annual financial campaign will be started on June 6 with an "early bird" breakfast, $600 to be sought for the district's participating in the area program; a Court of Honor will be conducted June 7 at Gold Cliff park with a motorcade being formed for the trip to the council ring. Several other activities will be taking place during the Summer that will demand your attention, interest and efforts if they have any chance of becoming successes. I urge all of you who are interested in the boys of Circleville and the county to plan to participate in the various undertakings scheduled for June. Those of you who are only lukewarm to the work of the Boy Scout organization should take part in only a few of the projects and I am certain that you will be sold that scouting in Circleville and Pickaway county can be developed into the very best in Central Ohio. The boys of the community want to be Scouts, and you should do all you can to give them this opportunity.

TO RURAL FOLK

FRIENDS: Why do residents of rural districts of the county fail to heed the warnings of the sheriff's department about gypsies? On numerous occasions the sheriff has urged rural folk to stay a safe distance away from gypsies and call the department if any gypsies are seen in the community. This week an aged resident of New Holland was robbed of about $250. Officers have been unable to trace the car used in the robbery. Older folk have been the victims of most of the recent gypsy robberies in the county. Order them from your property. Do not let them get near you.

TO WEATHERMAN

SIR: You gave us an example Thursday of just what you can do when you put your mind to it. Thursday's rain was of great value to all districts in which you opened the valves and permitted moisture to escape. The steady downpour was the best Circleville has had for more than a month. However, persons who have planted flowers and gardens are still very receptive, and they would appreciate more rain.

TO HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS

BOYS, Girls: The baccalaureate address that you heard last Sunday evening should be remembered forever. The address by the Rev. G. L. Troutman was outstanding. It covered many problems that you will be called on to face during the next few years of your lives, and, I am sure, that you will benefit greatly if you follow out the teachings he discussed during the evening. Part of the baccalaureate address was devoted to the Ten Commandments, the pastor stressing each as of utmost importance in your daily lives.

TO PICNICKERS

FRIENDS: The recent warm weather has opened the picnic season for Pickaway countians. A few warnings should not be out of place. Be careful where you obtain your water supply. Be sure it is from a well that has been approved by health authorities. Learn what poison ivy looks like and stay away from it. Take no chances by swimming in streams that are not familiar to you. Remember that Spring floods change the beds of streams. Where you had a swimming hole last year may be a gravel bar this season. The older folk should remember that too much exercise in a ball game may have serious results. Don't take foolish chances.

World At A Glance

AS CONGRESS begins to run into a Washington Summer a majority of the lawmakers invariably emit an anguished howl to the effect that they simply can't stand such weather; they must adjourn for the season or most of them will actually die.

This usual squawk is going on now. It always is particularly vehement just ahead of a presidential year.

Prospective candidates want to get out among the "Peepul" and fix fences. That's the explanation. Washington Summers aren't so hot. They're sticky but the mercury doesn't get especially high. It makes me laugh to hear a solon like Senator Norris of Nebraska refer to national legislation as impossible at a temperature around 95 degrees Fahrenheit, which is approximately the District of Columbia's maximum. I don't believe it's of record that as high as 100 ever was scored on Pennsylvania avenue. I've seen 110 in the Cornhusker state.

Moreover the Capitol, where our legislating is done, is beautifully air-conditioned. And when the senators and representatives retire at night 90 percent of them turn in in artificially cooled apartments. Their main risk is that they'll catch cold. They know that they'll half suffocate in their home bedrooms out in the sticks. But they don't mind that, since it gives 'em a chance to do politics where votes are to be had.

JUST TO ILLUSTRATE

Illustratively: John N. Garner is exceptionally vigorous in his demands for an early adjournment on Capitol Hill—by the end of June, if possible; by mid-July, anyway. Well, John N., as all are aware, is considerably talked of for the Democratic nomination in 1940. Naturally, he's fairly perishing to be plugging for himself out in the hinterland. However, as long as congress hangs on, he's tied by the leg to his presiding officer's job in the senate chamber. Oh, yes, he could get leave of absence if he chose, but he couldn't utilize it for his own campaigning purposes. That would be too obvious.

Meanwhile, Postmaster General Farley, also with presidential aspirations and comparatively footloose, is rampant. It goes almost without saying that this is frightfully aggravating to "Texas Jack." Washington weather literally is killing him. If he's to survive he's got to get out into the freer, fresher, purer (if very much hotter) atmosphere where Jim Farley is circulating so formidably.

Plenty of lawmakers are similarly anxious to seek better climatic conditions than Washington's. Not all of them deem themselves presidential prospects, but they hope to be re-elected to their present desks in the senate or house of representatives and they realize the desirability of being back home, shaking hands with folks and kissing babies, well ahead of next year's convention and election dates. Washington isn't quite so generally trying to senators, to be sure. Those whose terms overlap 1940 by from two to four years won't be so oppressed by it until 1942 or 1944 rolls around. The ones whose terms are just expiring are the boys who gasp for fresher ozone right now. And ALL representatives need air.

PLENTY TO BE DONE

Lots of legislating or legislative revision remain to be done. Tax adjustment! Economy! Neutrality! The Labor Act! Recovery! When the current congressional session began it was agreed, with practical unanimity, that all these and various other pressing problems imperatively must be solved before adjournment.

Not one of 'em has been more than merely talked about. "Oh, well," say the lawmakers, "let 'em go for the present. We can't endure the Washington climate in Summer."

Rather oddly the White House (what does it care for Capitol Hill's sufferings?) indorses early adjournment. The administration particularly sought to get neutrality modified. Now it's passed down word, "Pass it up until later on." In effect—"For gosh sake, go home."

Still, it's the old story. Congress always has been an awful headache to the executive mansion—to be relieved at nearly any sacrifice.

DIET AND HEALTH

Role of General Health in Styes

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I AM always glad when I find a discussion in technical medical literature of some humble subject, such as corns or styes. Usually the articles in medical journals are about very rare diseases and recommend very complicated, special treatments. When anybody has some new experience on a thing that everyone has, sooner or later, it is quite a relief.

So I was pleased to find a discussion of styes the other day in the Wisconsin Medical Journal. It was by Dr. A. G. Dunn.

If I may judge by the number of letters I receive, no subject is of more frequent and general interest. There are distinguished two types of styes—external and internal. An external stye is an infection of the Zeis glands in the eyelids at the base of an eyelash. The infection usually goes on to pus formation or, to put it another way, a stye is a small abscess.

Redness, Swelling

The onset of the external stye is characterized by redness and swelling at the base of one or more eyelashes. Before localization takes place—which means before the boil comes to a head—there may be considerable swelling. The inflammation subsides usually only after the pus has broken through or been let out.

These external styes may recur over and over and go all along the eyelids for several months. These are the only really troublesome cases, for which intensive treatment is needed.

The internal stye is an infection of the same sort, but it affects different glands. It affects the glands which pour out the lubricating fluid over the eyelid, the sebaceous glands that lie between the hard thick cartilage plates of the eyelid. (Not to be confused with the tear glands, which also sometimes become infected.) Internal styes run a longer course and the local inflammatory changes are more severe. The pain is greater on account of the rigidity and non-yielding character of the cartilaginous eyelids.

Common in Blonds

Styes may occur with any debilitating disease. They are more common in blonds and sandy-complexioned individuals. Refractive errors, the need for glasses, predisposes to styes, for no good reason of which I am aware, except that possibly the person who needs glasses rubs his eyes with his dirty fingers.

Since general health plays a role, both external and internal treatments are indicated. Local treatment of a simple stye consists of hot applications until it comes to a head and then accurate and precise incision by a doctor.

In general treatment the use of vaccines is highly recommended. Light-sensitive individuals find tinted glasses a great relief.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. D. N.: "I seem to be a perfectly well person but have noticed that two or three times a week I get a headache. Is this of any account? Should I see a doctor?"

Answer—It is probably of no consequence. It certainly is of no consequence if it happens only occasionally. People are often frightened by this, which is simply due to cooling or chilling of the urine with the precipitation of phosphates. Phosphates are normal constituents of the urine.

J. B.: "What causes the feet to have a terrible odor and what will cure them of this condition?"

Answer—Usually it is lack of cleanliness. Soap and water, morning and night, with a change of stockings or socks every day and two pairs of shoes worn on alternate days, will usually clear it up. If not, soaking the feet in a bath made of a teaspoonful of formaldehyde in a quart of water before going to bed will greatly aid.

R. O.: "I have been told that the juice of half a lemon in a glass of water taken before breakfast each morning will cure rheumatism. Do you approve of this remedy?"

Answer—I approve of the use of lemon juice before breakfast but I do not believe that it will "cure" rheumatism. If it did, there would be a good deal less rheumatism, wouldn't there?

CHAPTER ONE

WHEN Sarah Anne Melton stopped to buy oranges at the fruit counter in the market house, she had no premonition that before the yellow fruit would be placed in a paper sack and deposited in the basket that swung on her arm, her heart would tumble over, rockets would break, and it would be Christmas eve, Fourth of July and Bank Night all at once.

Sarah Anne wasn't even thinking of Jack Courtney at the moment. Otherwise his name wouldn't have burst across her mind like a shining, shattering meteor. Meteor—that was the word which described him best, she was to think a long time later.

A newsboy flung a paper in front of her while his hoarse young voice took on the dimensions of a town crier:

"Jack Courtney cuts time in two on Pacific hop! Courtney safe in San Francisco! Home-town boy makes good!"

Sarah Anne smiled at the youngster's tribute even while she reached for the paper. Ah, there was Jack! Blue eyes, steady, brave, gay, as she remembered. Hair tousled by a wind. There was always a wind blowing where Jack was. Long legs, broad shoulders, rangy body, chin on the stubborn side. The eyes were smiling into Sarah Anne's. They were the same and yet they were different—they had looked above the clouds across the sea, down the stars. They had seen wonders of which she could only dream. She must ask him how he felt up there in that immensity of sky and water with nowhere a light.

Then the knowledge of what the boy had done swept over her. Jack, whose fraternity pin was fastened under the wide sash of her ruffled pink gingham frock—fastened there because it really didn't mean anything and this way she could wear it without explaining to people—Jack had fulfilled his dream and down across the widest ocean on a non-stop flight. It was like him to fly the eastern way, back into his own continent, whereas most men went to Japan.

Sarah Anne did not read the story at the moment. Later, at home alone, in her low room with its white ruffled curtains and the chintz-covered chairs and draperies, she would follow the flight. Just now she wanted to shout the news to the world. She laughed softly at the absurdity of such a task. As if the world didn't know it! All the world from Hong Kong to Alberta, Canada, and San Francisco to Berryville, Indiana!

Always afterward she was to remember that it was Judith Drake who spoke to her first that day. Judy came running, waving her own paper in a strong, browned hand, her tawny head flung high. "Sarah Anne, isn't it glorious!" she exclaimed. "Up there with Lindbergh and Post and Hughes!" "It's so glorious it frightens me," Sarah Anne answered solemnly, voice not quite steady.

Judith's hair was orange or amber, depending on the sun. And her eyes matched its tones. There were times when Sarah Anne thought of Vikings and ships, when they were together. This was one of them.

Sarah Anne had prayed at night to be more like Judy, before she learned even prayer must have a possible basis. Once, when Judith received the coveted lead in a class play, Sarah Anne had expressed dissatisfaction with herself to Jack.

She had been envious of Judith. She adored her. But there had been other parts and, though Sarah Anne's voice was music and laughter and pathos when she read her lines, the class preferred stature.

This morning, standing in the market place with the record of Jack's triumph in her slim hands, Sarah Anne recalled his words:

"Don't you dare go changing yourself, Sarah Anne Melton. I like girls with dark brown eyes and blue-black curls and I don't want there to be too much to a fly. Just enough to stock her away in the cockpit comfortably. Coming along, Sally Allen, when I take off to Mars?"

"San Francisco calling. One second, please."

Well, he had taken off and she hadn't been there. Hadn't even known he was starting until she read it in the newspaper. She hadn't seen him for two years. She would think about that later, back home in the parsonage in her small bright room.

Mrs. Benjamin Allen came bustling up. Mrs. Allen was round and comfortable and the president of the Ladies' Aid society in the church where Sarah Anne's father had been minister for most of the 22 years of the girl's life.

Now the woman patted her cheerful face. "I always said that boy would do something. Knew it even when he was selling fruit at this counter right here to see himself through school."

Right here at this stand—how many dozens of apples and oranges and bananas he had weighed out for the parsonage! How many times she had happened by at closing time so he could stroll with her as far as the parsonage, going on to the white cottage where he lived with his mother, who taught in the grades.

"Do you think Jack'll come home for a spell?" Mrs. Allen persisted. "You ought to know, Sarah Anne. You and he used to like each other right well. Heard from him?"

She had heard twice in two years. There had been a post-card from Kansas City, and a long letter from his aviation school, written one night when it had rained and he had been lonely. Either it hadn't rained any more or he had not been lonely again. His mother heard, and now that Sarah Anne was teaching the third grade in the building where Mrs. Courtney had the sixth, sometimes a little news came to the minister's daughter.

It was like Sarah Anne that she didn't pretend. She might have said that Jack had been busy, that he had been indefinite, but she didn't. Her dark eyes held the straightforwardness that the boy who had flown away had loved.

"I haven't heard for more than a year, Mrs. Allen."

"No? Then all I have to say is that it's your own fault. With the running start you had, if you want that boy all you have to do is grab him. Of course, if you don't . . ."

Sarah Anne's candor went into hiding. After all, she couldn't tell anyone that she never saw a mail plane flying above the chimneys of the town without a memory of certain singing, winging days when she had gone up in an old crate with a boy who talked always of flying higher, faster, farther.

Grow your own watercress

Home gardeners who would like to grow their own watercress believe they must have a bubbling brook running through their garden. As a matter of fact, watercress can be grown in a shady, moist corner in any garden, in a garden pool or even in a tub of soil that is kept well watered.

Furthermore, watercress can be started in the home garden by planting stalks that have been saved from the table, providing these stalks have rootlets on them as shown in Today's Garden-Graph. Once started, watercress grows rapidly.

Watercress can be grown from seed planted in a flat of light soil. The flat can be sunk in a garden pool with the water allowed to come up just to the top edges of the flat.

229 BILLS PASS BOTH DIVISIONS OF LEGISLATURE

serious application to problems confronting the people they represent, the legislators, like school-boys when the final report cards are handed out, indulged in boyish pranks.

The house got a lot of fun out of calling before the bar a veteran newspaper correspondent and after accusing him of lobbying, voted to "lay him on the table," the standard practice of killing legislation on which the members do not care to be recorded by their votes.

Rep. Kenneth Robbins (R-Vinton) who is soon to be married, was hailed before the bar for a speech, but the members reconsidered and decided not to hear him, declaring that he "probably has said too much already."

The senate, during working hours, likes to think of itself as the more decorous branch but that did not prevent Senators Thomas, Pollock and Gallagher from letting out Tarzan yells as the arduous session expired.

229 Bills Completed

Statisticians asserted that a total of 229 bills had completed passage through both houses. Of these, Gov. John W. Bricker has signed 149. Many of those passed during the closing hours will not reach his desk for several days.

The business highlight of the final session was agreement between the two branches on the Civil Service reorganization measure, another providing for the administration of relief, and the biennial sundry claims bill.

After passing other administration reorganization bills — "ripper bills," the opposition party terms them — with almost no difficulty, the assembly ran into rough weather on the bill re-amending the state Civil Service Commission.

As finally approved, this measure increases the commission membership from two to three but permits the present commissioners, Ralph Emmons, East Rochester Republican, and Carl Smith, Kenton Democrat, to hold their jobs. Governor Bricker will appoint a third member, thus control will revert to the party in power.

The bill's sponsors contended that other provisions give additional protection to civil service employees against unwarranted dismissals.

One of the major achievements of the session was adoption of the first "permanent" relief program the state has had since regular government assistance to the unemployed became necessary.

House in Agreement

Enactment of the relief plan was completed when the house concurred in minor senate amendments to the measure providing for the administration of state aid. The state welfare director during the next 19 months will distribute $20,000,000 for poor relief.

Whether that sum will be sufficient was debatable. Sen. Leo Ascherman (R-Cleveland) contended that it will not be and sought unsuccessfully to appropriate an additional $3,000,000 as a reserve. When his amendment was defeated, Ascherman predicted that a special session would be necessary to provide more relief funds later.

Disagreement over the biennial sundry claims bill, which authorizes payment of miscellaneous claims against the state, finally was eliminated when the two branches accepted a conference committee report increasing the total to $866,925.

Previously the legislature had passed a general appropriation bill calling for expenditures of $317,346,510 by the state government and its dependencies during 1939-40. The governor has signed this bill.

The Pollock senate bill to provide funds for a state university building program by increasing student fees was killed in the lower house where members contended that the state should not saddle building costs on the students.

Likewise, the house turned back the Rogers bill to create four divisions in the state welfare department. It was defeated, 10 to 91.

Before calling it a day, the senate confirmed without dissent all pending executive appointments. These included Leo Rummel, Columbus, as Ohio State University trustee, and the eight members of the new conservation and natural resources commission.

END OF CRAFT FORCED BELOW BAY'S WATERS

failed to come up on schedule, search was begun, but it was not until daylight this morning that the pointed grey steel stern was sighted.

The submarine had nosed down into the soft mud bottom of the Irish Sea burrowing her prow deep into the bottom.

With the recent disaster to the United States submarine Squalus off Portsmouth, N. H., inevitably fresh in their minds, the men still trapped in the submersible kept up a steady "telegraphic contact" with the fleet of destroyers and other rescue ships above, tapping out messages of good cheer on the steeply sloping hull.

Four powerful towing tugs were en route to the scene from Liverpool, presumably to take the submarine in tow after the entire crew has been removed. One of them carried a cargo of food supplies.

The Thetis, a craft of 1,090 tons, is considerably smaller than the Squalus but is of most modern construction.

The Irish Sea, whose mists yesterday and all night hampered the frantic search of more than 80 ships and squadrons of Royal Air Force planes, aided the rescue work by subsiding into glassy quiet.

There is every hope of rescuing every last one of the Thetis's officers and crew, naval authorities said.

A destroyer was first to come upon the Thetis, 18 feet of her stern sticking at a dizzy 30-degree angle out of the water and her bows in the mud of the bottom.

Since the Thetis is 265 feet long, it was believed the men in their artificial "lungs" would have to rise through nearly 100 feet of water before reaching the surface.

Trouble Cause Unknown

It was not immediately ascertained whether the Thetis struck the mud shoal, or nosed down after some other mishap.

Capt. H. P. K. Oram, commander of the fifth submarine flotilla, and Lieut. F. G. Woods were the first men to be rescued.

They were taken aboard the destroyer Brazen, the warship which finally came upon the nearly submerged Thetis 14 miles northwest of Great Ormes Head, North Wales, and about 40 miles west of Liverpool.

Through the mist 18 feet of her stern could be seen projecting sharply out of the waves, the remainder of her 265 feet nosed far down.

At Birkenhead, where conflicting reports gave them anxious hours through the night, wives and relatives of the Thetis's crew were overjoyed.

Since the new submarine, which had not yet been accepted by the British navy, was first reported missing late yesterday, they had waited outside the offices of Cammel Laird, Ltd., builders of the Thetis.

When official news came that the submarine was located and all aboard were apparently safe, some laughed or smiled, but the majority of the women-folk unashamedly cried.

Like the submarine Squalus, which carried 26 men to their death off New Hampshire last week, the Thetis was of the latest type. She was, however, neither so large nor so powerful as the Squalus.

Engaged in trials prior to her acceptance as a unit of his majesty's navy, the Thetis moved out of Birkenhead shortly after noon yesterday, and dived at 1:30 p. m. (7:30 a. m. Circleville time).

She had planned to remain submerged for three hours, so no anxiety was felt until after she was overdue. Then the navy tug which accompanied her on the trial flashed an SOS and within a few minutes all the resources of the admiralty in the vicinity of Liverpool were put into action.

Twenty warships from Liverpool and Birkenhead, assisted by planes of the Royal Air Force, combed the gray-green sea through the evening and dimly moon-lighted night, seeking the marker buoys which automatically go up from sunken submarines.

Other units of the fleet dashed

Slays for Melon?

ACCUSED by police of fatally shooting 18-year-old Murial Campbell as a result of a prank involving a 65-cent watermelon, Athos Papas, 50, father of eight children, was held by Chicago police. According to authorities, Miss Campbell, together with several other high school students, picked up a watermelon from a fruit stand tended by Papas and began to play catch with it. When it dropped and smashed, the group ran. Papas is said to have fired after them, striking Miss Campbell.

GUARD SLUGGED AT INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL IS DEAD

LANCASTER, June 2 — Robert E. Lee, 18-year-old "model" inmate of the Boys Industrial School, remained in jail today awaiting official action following the death of Axel Stromstead, 52-year-old guard, who he allegedly struck and fatally injured in an attempt to escape.

Fairfield county officials indicated today that first degree murder charges probably would be placed against the youth, who reportedly admitted striking Stromstead with a four-pound, 14-inch iron bar.

According to Sheriff William J. Belhorn, Lee confessed that he and six other inmates of the reform school had planned to "make a run."

Explaining his actions to officials, Lee was quoted as saying: "I was struck by a sudden impulse. Someone had to do it, so I volunteered."

After Stromstead had been struck, Lee ran out of the tailor shop where the assault occurred and attempted to escape. His companions made no attempt to follow Lee, and he was captured 10 minutes later on school property.

Lee was committed to the institution from Henry county on charges of armed robbery. Officials of the school said he had been a model inmate prior to the assault and was to be discharged to his parents in Norwood, Mass., in two months.

Gravity of the situation was conveyed to relatives of those aboard the Thetis when notification of her plight was sent out by the admiralty.

John D. Macklin, Jr., of Groveport, a student of O. S. U., spent the weekend with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Macklin of near Tarlton. While here he became a member of the Saltcreek Valley Pomona Grange at the meeting last Saturday.

Several of our Valley farmers have worked their corn over once already, and it is growing fine in spite of all the dry weather we have been having.

The Lutheran Aid Society was entertained at the church in Tarlton on Thursday evening of this week with Mrs. Ona Walliser, Mrs. Elsie Murette, and Mrs. Esther Bockert as hostess in charge. A most excellent lunch was served and a nice program was rendered, and the attendance was good.

Members of the 1939 graduating class of Saltcreek township high school were the honored guests of the annual banquet of the school last Saturday evening at the Gold Cliff Chateau.

Rev. S. N. Root was in attendance to a Methodist Pastors meeting in Ashville last Monday.

END OF CRAFT FORCED BELOW BAY'S WATERS

failed to come up on schedule, search was begun, but it was not until daylight this morning that the pointed grey steel stern was sighted.

The submarine had nosed down into the soft mud bottom of the Irish Sea burrowing her prow deep into the bottom.

With the recent disaster to the United States submarine Squalus off Portsmouth, N. H., inevitably fresh in their minds, the men still trapped in the submersible kept up a steady "telegraphic contact" with the fleet of destroyers and other rescue ships above, tapping out messages of good cheer on the steeply sloping hull.

Four powerful towing tugs were en route to the scene from Liverpool, presumably to take the submarine in tow after the entire crew had been removed. One of them carried a cargo of food supplies.

The Thetis, a craft of 1,000 tons, is considerably smaller than the Squalus but is of most modern construction.

The Irish Sea, whose mists yesterday and all night hampered the frantic search of more than 80 ships and squadrons of Royal Air Force planes, aided the rescue work by subsiding into glassy quiet.

There is every hope of rescuing every last one of the Thetis's officers and crew, naval authorities said.

A destroyer was first to come upon the Thetis, 18 feet of her stern sticking at a dizzy 30-degree angle out of the water and her bows in the mud of the bottom.

Since the Thetis is 265 feet long, it was believed the men in their artificial "lungs" would have to rise through nearly 100 feet of water before reaching the surface.

Trouble Cause Unknown

It was not immediately ascertained whether the Thetis struck the mud shoal, or nosed down after some other mishap.

Capt. H. P. K. Oram, commander of the fifth submarine flotilla, and Lieut. F. G. Woods were the first men to be rescued.

They were taken aboard the destroyer Brazen, the warship which finally came upon the nearly submerged Thetis 14 miles northwest of Great Ormes Head, North Wales, and about 40 miles west of Liverpool.

Through the mist 18 feet of her stern could be seen projecting sharply out of the waves, the remainder of her 265 feet nosed far down.

At Birkenhead, where conflicting reports gave them anxious hours through the night, wives and relatives of the Thetis's crew were overjoyed.

Since the new submarine, which had not yet been accepted by the British navy, was first reported missing late yesterday, they had waited outside the offices of Cammel Laird, Ltd., builders of the Thetis.

When official news came that the submarine was located and all aboard were apparently safe, some laughed or smiled, but the majority of the women-folk unashamedly cried.

Like the submarine Squalus, which carried 26 men to their death off New Hampshire last week, the Thetis was of the latest type. She was, however, neither so large nor so powerful as the Squalus.

Engaged in trials prior to her acceptance as a unit of his majesty's navy, the Thetis moved out of Birkenhead shortly after noon yesterday, and dived at 1:30 p. m. (7:30 a. m. Circleville time).

She had planned to remain submerged for three hours, so no anxiety was felt until after she was overdue. Then the navy tug which accompanied her on the trial flashed an SOS and within a few minutes all the resources of the admiralty in the vicinity of Liverpool were put into action.

Twenty warships from Liverpool and Birkenhead, assisted by planes of the Royal Air Force, combed the gray-green sea through the evening and dimly moon-lighted night, seeking the marker buoys which automatically go up from sunken submarines.

Slays for Melon?

ACCUSED by police of fatally shooting 18-year-old Muriel Campbell as a result of a prank involving a 65-cent watermelon, Athos Papas, 50, father of eight children, was held by Chicago police. According to authorities, Miss Campbell, together with several other high school students, picked up a watermelon from a fruit stand tended by Papas and began to play catch with it. When it dropped and smashed, the group ran. Papas is said to have fired after them, striking Miss Campbell.

GUARD SLUGGED AT INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL IS DEAD

LANCASTER, June 2 — Robert E. Lee, 18-year-old "model" inmate of the Boys Industrial School, remained in jail today awaiting official action following the death of Axel Stromstead, 52-year-old guard, who he allegedly struck and fatally injured in an attempt to escape.

Fairfield county officials indicated today that first degree murder charges probably would be placed against the youth, who reportedly admitted striking Stromstead with a four-pound, 14-inch iron bar.

According to Sheriff William J. Belhorn, Lee confessed that he and six other inmates of the reform school had planned to "make a run."

Explaining his actions to officials, Lee was quoted as saying: "I was struck by a sudden impulse. Someone had to do it, so I volunteered."

After Stromstead had been struck, Lee ran out of the tailor shop where the assault occurred and attempted to escape. His companions made no attempt to follow Lee, and he was captured 10 minutes later on school property.

Lee was committed to the institution from Henry county on charges of armed robbery. Officials of the school said he had been a model inmate prior to the assault and was to be discharged to his parents in Norwood, Mass., in two months.

Gravity of the situation was conveyed to relatives of those aboard the Thetis when notification of her plight was sent out by the admiralty.

STARS SAY—

For Friday, June 2

THE LUNAR transits for this day may be read as generally adverse. While there are no definite predictions of disaster, there are undercurrents of trickery, fraud, deception or some other sinister situation brought about by unscrupulous persons. Beware of these, use vigilance and sound judgment, and some favorable prospects will be diverted to constructive channels. Elders or superiors should be handled with diplomacy.

Those whose birthday it is may be able to sidestep certain menacing conditions by alertness to fraud, treachery or some other obscure or subtle situation brought about by designing persons. This might be in high places, but in all be wary, tactful and use ingenuity in parrying peculiar attacks.

A child born on this day may be clever, direct and plainspoken, but it may be the victim of those of very opposite characteristics. Careful training in not being subject to obvious deceit is recommended.

FIGHT LEAVES BAER FINISHED, NOVA DEMANDING CHANCE AT TITLE

EXPERTS CLAIM LOU NOT READY TO FACE LOUIS

Small Crowd Cheers Efforts Of Two Pugilists During Part Of Encounter

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, June 2—Recuperating today from the worst beating of his entire career of a decade, Max Baer finally has been overtaken by the pugilistic requiem which he had eluded for four years, and over his nearly prostrate hulk stepped Lou Nova, confident now that his ultimate destiny must be the world heavyweight championship. But oddly enough, while he qualified for a promised September title challenge by butchering Baer in 11 rounds last night, Nova simultaneously eliminated himself from consideration for the time being.

He removed all doubt as to whether Baer is through, converting the latter's face into as gory as mess as you're likely to see without knives entering into the thing, and he displayed high courage, sturdiness and a fierce eagerness to keep on wading in where the fighting was hottest. However, there must be a statute against the likes of him being sacrificed to Joe Louis in a championship fight. In any case, the latter probably will wind up his 1939 campaign when he puts the silencer on Two-Ton Galento on June 29.

Fight Year Away

Flushed with success, 24 years old and greedy for the things pugilism offers to those who are lucky and adept, Nova fretfully will scramble along reiterating his demands for the title battle he will get some day, but it won't be sooner than next year, or ringside witnesses to last night's stirring blood-letting are wrong.

What Nova did in this, his most important victory, was to show that he is a willing and damaging mixer, though green as the grass around his native Alameda, Cal., and he also was a party to it when Baer finally proved that he could and would take a licking even while making his final exit from before the fight mob, but Baer wasn't very gallant about it. He did several things that it would have been in better taste to omit—even in a prize fight. For one thing, he loudly claimed a foul.

Finally Referee Frank Fulton stepped in and stopped it in 1:21 of the 11th, with Baer still on his feet and with no knockdowns charged against him, but with blood boiling from his mouth, his nose bleeding, his left eye swollen and his breath whistling through his teeth. He was choking on the blood from his cut mouth, Fulton said in stopping it. The blood had nauseated him two rounds earlier. In any case, by this time he was finished.

Baer had won four out of the previous rounds, getting two of them on low punches, though he won them anyway, and he lost for landing a punch after the bell. That and his claim of a foul on a punch that obviously carried no steam didn't add to his prestige. Neither did his quitting at least twice in toe-to-toe exchanges in the early rounds before he was cut and winded.

Just Punching Bag

When he finally began to go, bleeding and panting, he was little more than a punching bag driven about the ring by Nova's fast and authoritative punching. Baer covered up mostly in the last two rounds, and when he fought back was too spent to do the slightest damage.

Of some importance perhaps is the fact that Baer carried through his promise to fight and not clown. Perhaps he didn't have time. However, he was bitterly intent on beating Nova in the first few rounds and after that preoccupied with saving his hide, and it was a battle.

The slender little crowd of only 17,000 strewn about the vast, Yankee stadium frequently stood and cheered furious exchanges that high-lighted a really, tough and bruising encounter, in which both punched with all they had, it might be mentioned, didn't have much, although he obviously was trained fine. At 210½ he matched the weight he made for his title-winning fight with Primo Carnera in 1934 and had an 8½ pound edge on Nova.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At NEW YORK—Lou Nova, 202, Alameda, Calif., scored technical knockout over former heavyweight champion Max Baer, 210½, Livermore, Calif. (11).

Wally Sears, 175½, Minersville, Pa., decisively Max Marek, 191, Chicago (6).

Elza Thompson 231½, Indianapolis, knocked out Jorge Brescia 210½, Argentina (3).

Joey Fontana, 130, New York, won on technical knockout over Pete Mascia, 134, New York (3).

The game was a battle from start to finish with several arguments over decisions keeping the interest high. Manager Tom Tomlinson of the Purinas announced that he would play the game under protest, but, since his team won, nothing will come of the protest.

The Eshelman team was ahead 3-1 in the third inning, but trailed 3-4 in the sixth. Two runs crossed in the first half of the seventh to put the Eshelman outfit ahead, but Melson's blow turned the tables in the final half of the last inning.

The winners were outth, but they bunched their blows getting most of them when they counted. Blue Ribbon Dairy and Cooper Oil teams meet at 6:30 p. m. Friday.

Lou Nova After Fight With Champ; Max Cries

By Hype Igoe
NEW YORK, June 2—Lou Nova, with Max Baer's haymakers still ringing in his ears, today declared he is "ready for Joe Louis."

Whether the world will agree with him, or not, Nova stands steadfastly to his determination to meet the great Negro champion of the world in September. Even Nova's manager, Ray Carlin, hesitated when asked if he would challenge the bomber, Nova in the dressing room five minutes after the bout stood up and openly defied the champion.

"Sure, I'll fight him. Fighting is my trade and no man alive will keep me from winning the title."

Louis sat somewhat dumbfounded in the Yankee stadium and he mumbled:

"That Nova is a good strong boy."

Nova was bemoaning his own bad luck in hurting his right hand in the third round.

"I would have knocked Baer out in an early round if I hadn't put my right out of commission in the third when I popped him on top of the head."

"Why did you elect to slug with a slugger when your boxing would have been the safer way?" he was asked.

"I like to slug. I love it. The fans wanted a fight and I made up my mind I'd give them one. It wasn't milk and honey, I can tell you. It was my hardest fight and I have only admiration and respect for Baer. He made a game, wonderful stand against my youth."

Baer wept like a child in the dressing room.

"I've got a fearful headache. I swallowed a lot of blood from the cut inside my lip. I couldn't prevent it. It gushed down my throat and choked me. My hands stood up. I should have knocked him out. He's a long way from a Louis fight in my opinion."

"Of course, I want to fight him again. I need fights. I'm sure of that now. It was the blood swallowing which slowed me up."

TEAM HONORS NEGRO ACE FOR SPORTSMANLIKE ACT
KALAMAZOO, Mich., June 2—Negro High Jumper Roscoe Washington today was honorary co-captain of the Western State Teachers college track team because he would not set a Buckeye conference record.

He was elected captain yesterday chiefly because of his "Beau Geste" in letting stand the record set by a friend who was killed shortly after graduation last year.

The friend, Recker of Ohio Wesleyan, set the record at 6 feet 1 7/8 inches last Spring. Washington, a consistent 6 feet 4 inch jumper, won the conference title at Miami university last Saturday, but refused to attempt to break the record.

ANDREWS GAINS NINTH VICTORY IN 7 TO 2 TILT

COLUMBUS, June 2 — Nathan Andrews, star pitcher of the Columbus Red Birds, was credited with his sixth straight victory and his ninth for the season today after the Ohio squad defeated Milwaukee 7 to 2 in a night game here.

The Brewers, holders of third place in the American association race, was allowed only six hits and one base on balls by Andrews.

Meanwhile, the last-place Toledo Mud Hens surprised the league-leading Kansas City Blues at Toledo with a 5 to 1 victory. The Hens pounded out nine hits off three Kansas City hurlers. The Blues remained in first place, however.

At Indianapolis St. Paul defeated the Indians 8 to 5 in an 11-inning contest. The game between Minneapolis and Louisville was postponed because of rain.

REDS HIT HARD IN 13TH INNING TO RETAIN PLACE
BOSTON, Mass., June 2 — The Cincinnati Reds remained two games ahead of the second-place St. Louis Cardinals today in the National League after rallying in the 13th inning to trounce the Boston Bees 9 to 4.

With the score tied 4 to 4, the Reds went into action in the 13th and loaded the bases with one out. Johnny Lanning, the fifth hurler used by the Bees, then took Tom Earley's place.

Hersberger welcomed the new pitcher with a single that brought in two runs; then Harry Craft polished off the game with a homer that accounted for three more tallies.

The contest started as pitcher's battle between Johnny "No-Hit" Vander Meer and Danny MacFayden. MacFayden did not permit a Cincinnati player to reach first base until the seventh while Vander Meer kept the Bees scoreless until the eighth.

heart? For I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus Christ."

So Paul took some of the disciples from Caesarea with him and went to Jerusalem and was gladly received into the house of Manson of Cyprus. Next day he called together all the disciples and told them what he had been doing and they then told him how the people in the city were bitter against Paul, and had been telling every one that he taught the Jews that they were to forsake Moses and the old Jewish laws.

They then advised him to take four men with him, and all five were to purify themselves before going to the temple, and to show in every way that they were obedient to these laws.

When Paul was brought before the council he commenced his defense by using the words that are today's Golden Text, "Men and brethren, I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day."

Here the high priest, whose name was Ananias, told those standing nearest to Paul to strike him on the mouth, whereat Paul said to him, "God shall smite thee, thou whited wall: for sittest thou to judge me after the law and commandment me to be smitten contrary to the law?"

Then Paul told them that he was a Pharisee, and that the Pharisees and Sadducees disputed together about the resurrection, and that he preached it. Whereupon these two sects got into such an argument that the chief captain, fearing that Paul would be torn to pieces among them, took him again to the castle.

That night he had a vision of the Lord, who told him to be of good cheer, for as he had borne witness to the faith in Jerusalem, so he would have to bear it in Rome.

Next day certain Jews banded together and vowed that they would neither eat nor sleep until they had taken Paul's life. But his nephew heard them and went to the chief captain, who ordered his centurions to take 200 soldiers
"horsemen three score and ten, and spearmen 200, at the third hour of the night." They were told to take Paul to Caesarea to the governor, Felix. So it was done, and Paul's life was again saved.

Once more Paul made his defense against his accusers. Felix could not find that Paul had done anything worthy of death, but being a politician, he was willing to please the Jews, so kept Paul bound, especially as Paul had no money to give him. Thus two years passed with Paul in prison. Then Felix invited King Agrippa, ruler of some territory in the northeastern part of Palestine, to visit him and hear what Paul had to say.

So Paul told his story, from his persecution of the Christians to his own conversion when the vision of the Lord came to him, and King Agrippa was much moved, saying to him, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian."

Paul having cited his Roman citizenship, however, was compelled to go to Rome to have his final trial, so he was put on a ship, which had many adventures, including shipwreck. Paul finally arrived in Rome, where he was allowed to have his own house and was permitted to preach the Gospel for two years.

ent to these laws. So Paul did as they counseled, but to no avail. As soon as he entered the temple there was a hue and cry and many laid their hands on him, crying out that he was the heretic. They threw him out of the temple and would have killed him but for the chief captain, who took his soldiers and centurions and rescued
Paul and took him to the castle, and there bound him with chains.
His enemies followed, shouting,
"Away with him!"

Bound as he was, Paul stood on the stairs and told all those present that he was a Jew; how he had formerly persecuted the Christians, and how he was converted.
His enemies, however, were unimpressed, and cried out to slay such a man; he was not fit to live. So the chief captain told his soldiers to bind him, and "that he should be examined by scourging," which must have resembled our "third degree." But Paul said to him, "Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman and uncon-demned?"

When Paul was brought before
the council he commenced his defense by using the words that are today's Golden Text, "Men and brethren, I have lived in all good
conscience before God until this day."

said to him, "God shall smite thee,

trary to the law?"

SALE OF CANNING FACTORY ATTRACTS MANY BUYERS OF EQUIPMENT

NO BIDS HEARD ON REAL ESTATE OF LADOGA FIRM

Numerous Industries Send Representatives To Bid On Machinery

No bids were received Thursday on the real estate of the Sears & Nichols canning factory, S. Washington street, offered at public auction. Earl Swepton, of Columbus, federal auctioneer, said the real estate was "put up" at $15,000 and there were no bidders.

The real estate consists of approximately 100,000 square feet of floor space, brick and frame construction. The property includes over two acres of land along a railroad siding.

The public sale of machinery and equipment of the plant started at about 10:45 a. m. and was completed about 5:30 p. m. The crowd during the day was estimated at approximately 200 persons. The paddle system was used in bidding. Mr. Swepton reported about 50 paddles were issued.

Many Bidders Present

Bidders were present from Ohio and Iowa, Arkansas, Missouri, Michigan, New York, Indiana, Maryland and West Virginia.

Machinery and equipment were sold in individual lots. Sale officials said some equipment was sold for salvage only.

Sale officials said some of the large buyers of equipment included H. M. Crites and the Winor Canning Co., of Circleville; Topper Iron & Metal Co., Columbus; Evan Reicheiderfer, Indianapolis; Roland Grace, Oak Hill, O.; DeGraff Feed Co., of DeGraff, O.; W. A. Godfrey, Benton Harbor, Mich., and the Circleville Iron & Metal Co.

The Sears & Nichols plant has been idle this year. The last operator of the plant was the Ladoga Co., of Indianapolis. Operations formerly conducted in Circleville by the Ladoga Co. are now operation in Washington C. H.

EX-SOLON FACES JAIL ON CHARGE OF TAKING FUND

COLUMBUS, June 2 — Former State Representative Julian H. Schweller of Putnam county was to begin serving a 30-day workhouse sentence today after unexpectedly pleading guilty to charges of padding expense accounts while a member of the legislature.

The jail term, plus a $200 fine which Schweller said he would have to work out "because I haven't any money to pay it," was imposed by Judge Cecil J. Randall in criminal court.

The former law-maker and farmer pleaded guilty to 10 counts of an indictment. He was to go on trial Monday for allegedly receiving a total of $435 in items ranging from $1 to $12. There were 101 counts in the original indictment.

Charges were placed against Schweller in October, 1938, at the same time that former State Senator William H. Herner of Huron county was indicted on 15 counts accusing him of falsely receiving $84 in expense money.

Herne has pleaded not guilty. No date has been set for trial.

The sentence imposed in Schweller's case was the maximum allowed by law on any one of the counts. If he works out his fine, he will do so at the rate of $1.50 per day.

917 CLASSED AS GROUP OF FARM REFUGEES FACE PLAN OFFICIALS RETURN TO HOME AT CONFERENCE

HAVANA, June 2 — With Cuban officials adamantly standing by their sailing orders, the German liner St. Louis was expected to depart today with her 917 dis-mayed Jewish refugees.

A port guard returning from the St. Louis late last night said many of the refugees had not slept for the last two nights. Huddling nervously, worrying over their fate, many were weeping but still hoping against hope they would be given permission to land.

However, the decree of President Federico Laredo Bru ordering the St. Louis to weigh anchor already has been published in the official gazette, and customs officials, after a conference with agents of the Hamburg-American line, said the line would comply rather than fight the law.

Earlier, Luis Clasing, the line's agent, sent a final petition to the President saying:

"We were assured by Immigration Commissioner Manuel Benitez that the landing permits which the St. Louis passengers brought were valid. The passengers came as transients or tourists.

"If they are classed as immigrants, all are ready to post a $500 bond each, which will total more than $450,000. The line promises to return all to their port of embarkation should the government decide to deport them.

"If they are returned aboard the St. Louis, collective suicides and other disasters are almost certain."

HEARING POSTPONED

SALE OF CANNING FACTORY ATTRACTS MANY BUYERS OF EQUIPMENT

NO BIDS HEARD ON REAL ESTATE OF LADOGA FIRM

Numerous Industries Send Representatives To Bid On Machinery

No bids were received Thursday on the real estate of the Sears & Nichols canning factory, S. Washington street, offered at public auction. Earl Swepston, of Columbus, federal auctioneer, said the real estate was "put up" at $15,000 and there were no bidders.

The real estate consists of approximately 100,000 square feet of floor space, brick and frame construction. The property includes over two acres of land along a railroad siding.

The public sale of machinery and equipment of the plant started at about 10:45 a. m. and was completed about 5:30 p. m. The crowd during the day was estimated at approximately 200 persons. The paddle system was used in bidding. Mr. Swepston reported about 50 paddles were issued.

Many Bidders Present

Bidders were present from Ohio and Iowa, Arkansas, Missouri, Michigan, New York, Indiana, Maryland and West Virginia.

Machinery and equipment were sold in individual lots. Sale officials said some equipment was sold for salvage only.

Sale officials said some of the large buyers of equipment included H. M. Crites and the Winor Canning Co., of Circleville; Topper Iron & Metal Co., Columbus; Evan Reichelderfer, Indianapolis; Roland Grace, Oak Hill, O.; DeGraff Feed Co., of DeGraff, O.; W. A. Godfrey, Benton Harbor, Mich., and the Circleville Iron & Metal Co.

The Sears & Nichols plant has been idle this year. The last operator of the plant was the Ladoga Co., of Indianapolis. Operations formerly conducted in Circleville by the Ladoga Co. are now operation in Washington C. H.

EX-SOLON FACES JAIL ON CHARGE OF TAKING FUND

COLUMBUS, June 2 — Former State Representative Julian H. Schweller of Putnam county was to begin serving a 30-day workhouse sentence today after unexpectedly pleading guilty to charges of padding expense accounts while a member of the legislature.

The jail term, plus a $200 fine which Schweller said he would have to work out "because I haven't any money to pay it," was imposed by Judge Cecil J. Randall in criminal court.

The former law-maker and farmer pleaded guilty to 10 counts of an indictment. He was to go on trial Monday for allegedly receiving a total of $435 in items ranging from $1 to $12. There were 101 counts in the original indictment.

Charges were placed against Schweller in October, 1935, at the same time that former State Senator William H. Herner of Huron county was indicted on 15 counts accusing him of falsely receiving $84 in expense money.

Herner has pleaded not guilty. No date has been set for trial. The sentence imposed in Schweller's case was the maximum allowed by law on any one of the counts. If he works out his fine, he will do so at the rate of $1.50 per day.

917 CLASSED AS GROUP OF FARM REFUGEES FACE PLAN OFFICIALS RETURN TO HOME AT CONFERENCE

HAVANA, June 2 — With Cuban officials adamantly standing by their sailing orders, the German liner St. Louis was expected to depart today with her 917 dismayed Jewish refugees.

A port guard returning from the St. Louis late last night said many of the refugees had not slept for the last two nights. Huddling nervously, worrying over their fate, many were weeping but still hoping against hope they would be given permission to land.

However, the decree of President Federico Laredo Bru ordering the St. Louis to weigh anchor already has been published in the official gazette, and customs officials, after a conference with agents of the Hamburg-American line, said the line would comply rather than fight the law.

Earlier, Luis Classing, the line's agent, sent a final petition to the President saying:

"We were assured by Immigration Commissioner Manuel Benitez that the landing permits which the St. Louis passengers brought were valid. The passengers came as transients or tourists.

"If they are classed as immigrants, all are ready to post a $500 bond each, which will total more than $450,000. The line promises to return all to their port of embarkation should the government decide to deport them.

"If they are returned aboard the St. Louis, collective suicides and other disasters are almost certain."
